ALEX BLILEY DROWNS IN SHAFT OF C. OF C.C. MINE IN TOWN

Alex Bliley, a well-known business man and contractor, was drowned at 6:30 o'clock this morning in seven feet of water in the shaft of the Cripple Creek Mining company, corner of Fourth and Myers avenue.

Mr. Bliley and his son Charles, 20 years of age, had descended to the water level of the mine. Mr. Bliley had a contract with the company to pump the water from the shaft and had installed his pumps about ten days ago. Mr. Bliley was attending to some matters at the station while his son had gone up the ladder to get something.

The pumps had been started and [with] the noise did [could] not warn the son when the father slipped and fell into the water.

When Charley Bliley came down the ladder scarcely a minute or two after going up he saw his father's had floating in the water. He at once gave the alarm, the whistle was sounded and J.S. Walker and Willard Wyatt went to the bottom and with an iron hook seven feet long grappled the body and brought it to the surface of the water. It was all the two men could do to get the body into the bucket. Mr. Bliley had on heavy canvass boots filled with water and his clothing became to heavy that he was unable to extract himself.

The body was hoisted to the surface and Coroner Gesell notified. The remains were taken to the undertaking parlors of Hopkins & Gesell.

Alex Bliley was about 50 years of age and leaves a wife and two sons, Charley, 20 years of age, and Harry, 8 years old. The family resides at 100 Main Street, Old Town. Mr. Bliley came here about ten years ago from Aspen, but originally hailed from Pennsylvania. He has been in the second-hand mining machinery business for years at 408 East Myers avenue.

Mr. Bliley has been a member of the A.F. and A.M. and was highly respected and industrious citizen. No arrangements will be made for the funeral until relatives can be heard from in Erie, Pa. Coroner Gesell stated this morning that he did not believe an inquest would be necessary.
