Frank A. Bliley's

Album 1. Bliley, Frank A. Family Album Created by Sam and Inez Wagner Scanned: August 15, 2015

Introduction

This album was created by the cousins of Frank Anderson Bliley—Sam and Inez Wagner—and likely given to him as a present. Sam and Inez appear to have done this on a regular basis with several other known “gift” albums. The first 40 pages are classic work of Sam and Inez with Sam making copies of studio portraits and adding his own photos of the family and their activities.

Observations

Some subjects and locations are expected—home and family in Erie, Pennsylvania—while others such as Boulder and Cripple Creek, Colorado are not. Frank made many trips to visit his brothers in Aspen and Cripple Creek when he was a young man and during college summer breaks. Then, he returned with his family in the early 1920s to aid him in a natural treatment for a “respiratory condition”. They lived in Boulder for several years and returned to Erie when the “treatment” proved not to be beneficial.

From pages 40 to 59, Frank took over and added photos up until the end of the album. Then his last entry was a autograph sheet with the names of those family members attending the 81st birthday party for his mother, Mary Jane Mead Bliley.

The first photo added by Frank was in 1911 at the age of 46. To our benefit, he was pretty regular in adding captions with dates on the back of the photos, but regrettably, not all of them.

Like a typical family photo album, most of Frank’s photos are of family members and travels. These include photos of the kids growing up and them at play. These are what we call “snapshots” today.

This is a great collection of photos shot by several family photographers. It is well worth studying for names, dates and locations of family activities.
