Album 10. Isabelle Marie Rosenberg's Album

Scanned: October 2015

Introduction

When I first came across this album, I thought my father, Frank Dawson Bliley, created it. The inside cover photo of him in a bathing suit and two facing photos of him with his mobile ham radio station, then followed by numerous photos of my mother, Isabelle Marie Rosenberg, and a number of other women, suggested this was a second album of his dating years.

Then I began scanning the pages and realized this was the work of my mother, and not my dad. The photos of him up front reflected her keen love interest in him, so she gave him a position of great importance as the first thing you see when you open up the album to show someone, or to gaze upon by herself. The ownership was reinforced by the snapshot of her with the drum and bugle corps photos and with friends at the "cottage" and beach. This would not have been a man's choice.

Her participation in the high school drum and bugle corps was her service as a "sword carrier" as indicated in her yearbook. She loved music and played the piano, but not a drum or bugle. She also served in the high school's "mixed chorus".

This is a great album with many playful photos of Mom as a young adult and as a child. There are even some photos of her stepbrother, which her parents adopted after the post-delivery death of my grandmother's sister.

Scanning Techniques and Practices

The album was scanned first as whole pages at 1200 ppi, then a few individual photos were scanned at 1200 or 1800 ppi. Individual photos were chosen for high-resolution scanning based on their subject matter and quality. Virtually all files are in the TIFF format to retain the image's high quality.

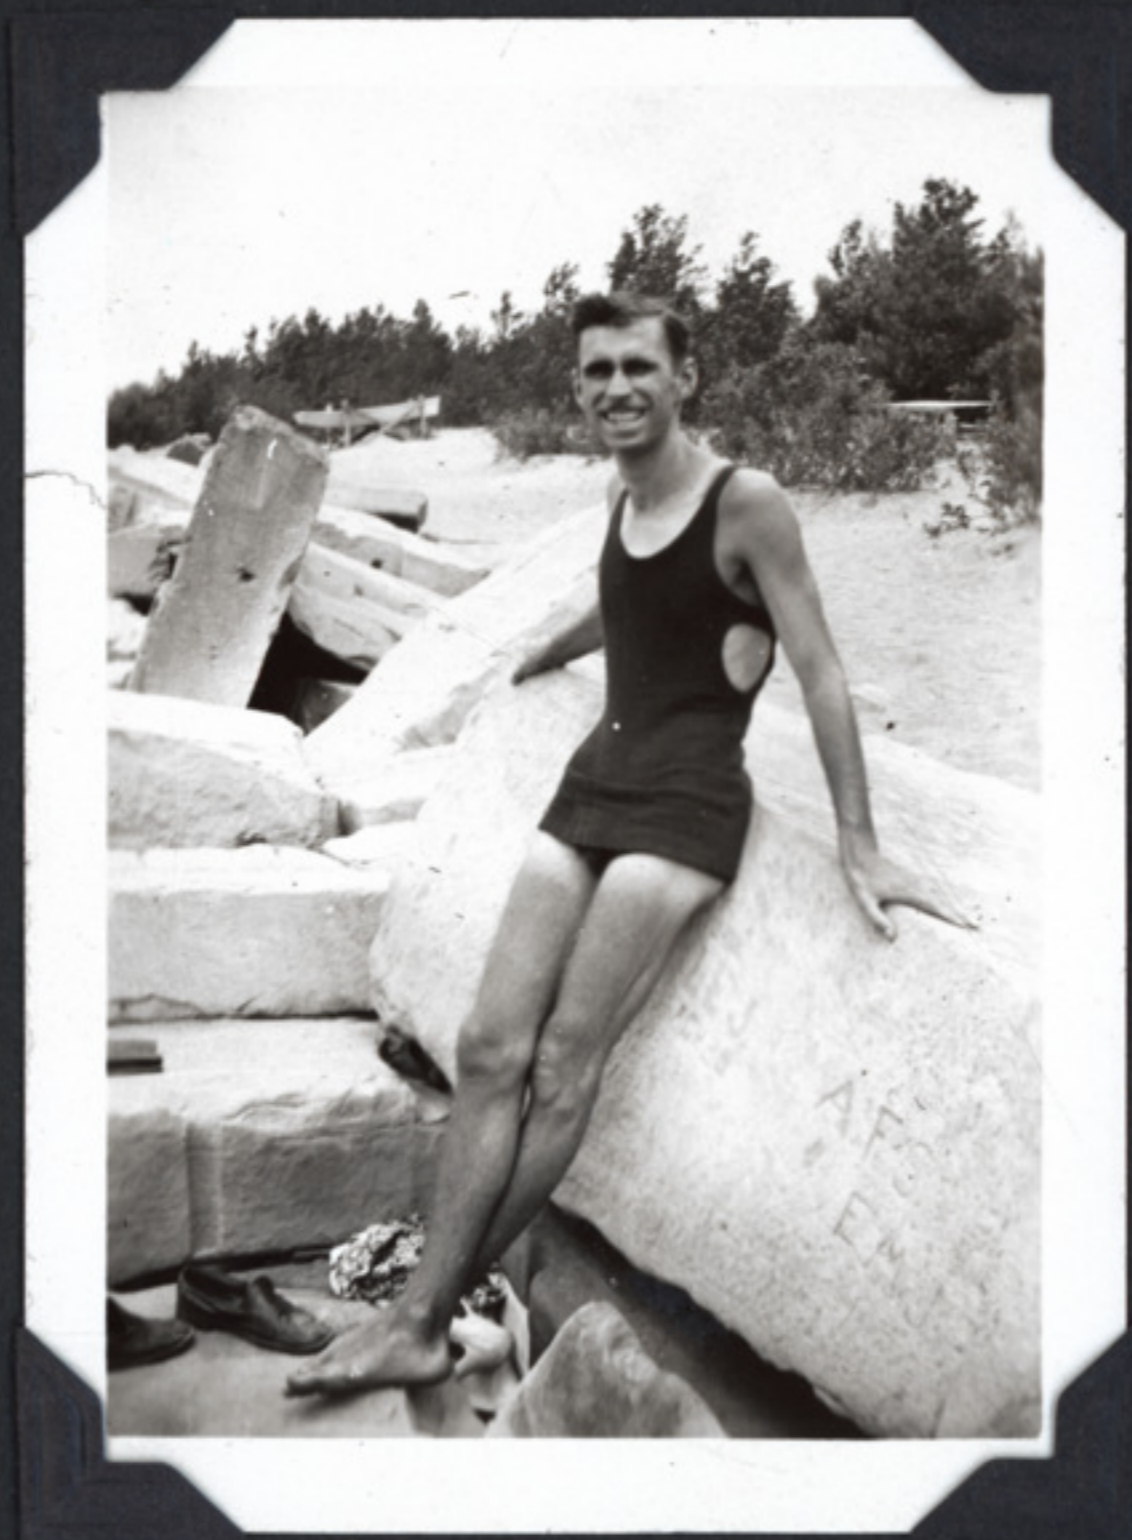

The album numbers in this series were numbered in what originally appeared to be chronological order for convenience and quick identification.

NOTE: All images were color corrected and adjusted for maximum clarity to remove effects of aging or tinting, or to improve the contrast to bring out "hidden" details. Consequently, these scans may not represent the actual images as seen in 2015. These adjustments were done for the benefit of future viewers who may not have the tools or skills to make these adjustments.
